As The Four

Time is a passage from today into tomorrow. August is the beginning of everything. Everyone saw many new faces and old ones, but they never stayed the same. They were always changing throughout the seasons. The Seniors were preparing for the new world after high school, the Juniors and Sophomores were trying to find themselves, and the Freshman were trying to get use to the high school ways. During Homecoming week there were a series of events that the students could participate in, such as Halloween Day, float buildings and pep rallies. These things brought the student body closer together. As the years passed, this will be one thing that everyone will remember.

Students have started to realize how much a bond between friends meant to them. As the year ended it left the students of Montevillo High School one question, "Today we are here, but tomorrow where will we be?"

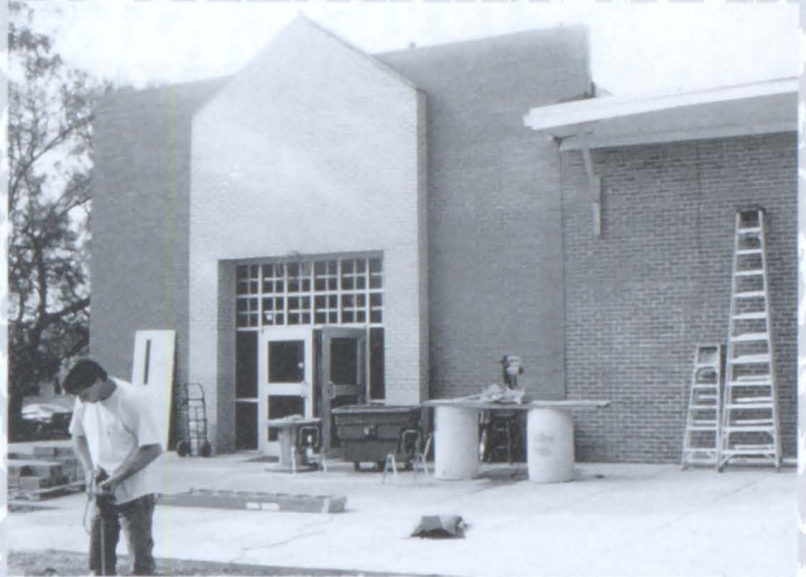

Seniors Regina Bright and Erica Cain are standing outside of the school for Big Brother Big Sister day. This was a day for the Senior and Freshman class to get to know one another.

Seasons Change...

The new lunchroom is one thing that the whole school has been talking about this year. Construction workers worked very hard to finish the lunchroom.

The Senior class shows their school spirit as they walk down Main Street for the Homecoming Parade. This was a fun time for every class to participate in school activities.

Joey Hensley is posing as "Woody" off of the movie, Toy Story. Dressing up for Halloween Day during Homecoming is a tradition.

A Season of Memories

Student Life at MHS consisted of a variety of people. Whether you were in the band, played sports, participated in extra curricular activities, or worked, you made up Montevallo High School. Trying to balance school work while going all out during Homecoming, trying to remember all your meetings at 7:30 in the morning, studying for six-weeks exams, being at all the band practices, football practices, or any other activity that continued after school or on weekends, was what made the school year go round. It was hard, but it created memories for everyone to carry with them for the rest of their lives. Our lives change as we grow up and move on, but we will never forget the memories created at Montevallo High school.

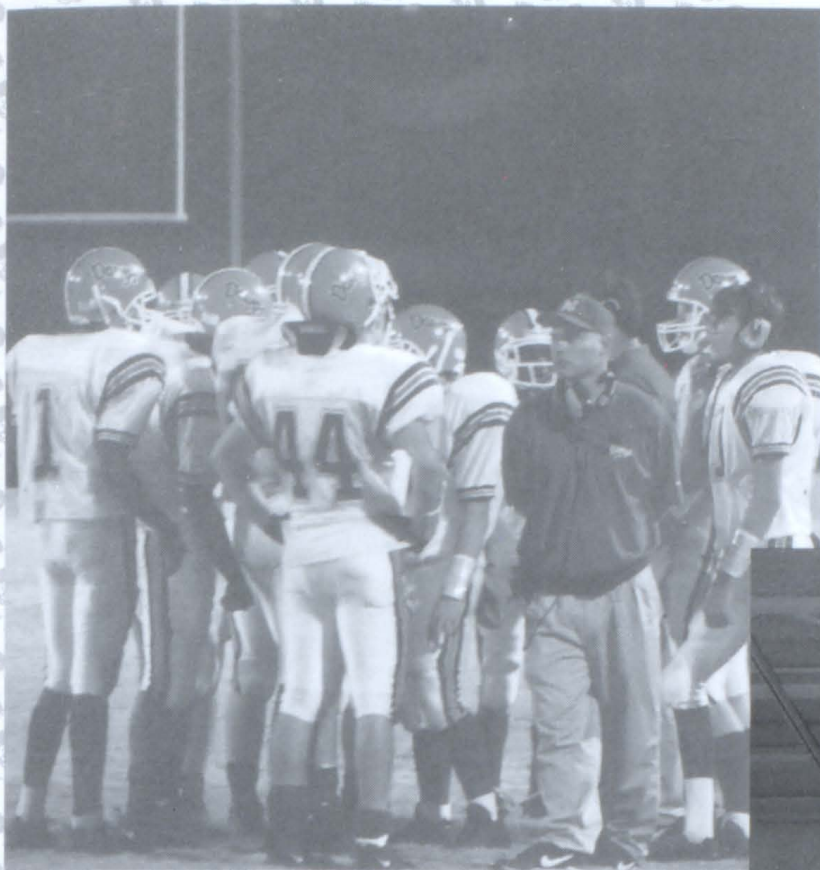

On her way to the last one of the day, Sophomore Dianne Peavy stops at the drink machine for a quick refreshment. Students spent a lot of money at the drink and snack machines this past year.

Seniors Geof Moeck and Caleb Masterson went all out this year for Homecoming. Being their Senior year they intended to make it the best. With the theme of Mardi Gras the Seniors pulled out the victory of Homecoming.

Are we having
yet?

Coach Boren huddles with Bulldogs during a football game. Football games were a big part in everyone's lives, whether you played football, where in the band, Mass Comm or Spotlight, or just went to watch.

Senior Katherine Champion goes up in a pyramid at the homecoming pep rally. The cheerleaders worked really hard all summer long at camps, and after school to learn all of their cheers and dances for the games.

Junior Jennifer Rodgers, and Sophomore Andrew Deweese, practice for Friday night's band performance. Practicing for the band was not easy, but paid off during competitions.

Summer of . . .

Junior Molly Wlaker helps out her fellow man, or child, by attending a mission oriented church camp. She received an opportunity to work with inner city children in Mobile at the University of Mobile.

Juniors Nicki Huggins, Rene Morris, Kira Minnick, and former student Dale Flowers kick in the summer by heading to the Tim McGraw and Faith Hill concert at the BJCC. Many student attended a variety of concerts for fun.

Let us return to the Summer of Yester Year for a moment and reminisce on all of our fun in the sun. With a variety of students here at MHS everyone has a different opinion of what is summer fun whether it be spending your vacation at the beach, woods, mountains or attending camps, concerts, races, or sport events. Most students spent their time lounging around or making a little summer cash, like Junior Kendall Ingram explains, "I got to go to the beach twice this summer, which was a lot of fun, but I spent most of my summer working and hanging out with friends." Now wasn't that a fun trip down memory lane?

Freshman Mandi Huggins and Jamie Hoots spend their vacation taking in some rays at the beach. The beach was a common haven for a teen vacation.

Seniors Dana Bice and Regina Bright enjoy the outdoors for a summer vacation. The summer of 2000 was a hot one, but many people still enjoyed the outdoors despite the scorching temperatures.

Senior Tim Graham has an exiting 4th of July weekend at the Daytona Speedway in Daytona, Florida. With only two and a half months of freedom students didn't have very much time to enjoy their summer vacation.

Yester Year

Cheerleaders Brittney Hayes, Emily Brown, Julynn Bradshaw, Katherine Champion, and Raven Reed relieve their summer camp stress by dancing and hanging out in their dorm room hallway. They received all superior ratings by the Universal Cheerleading Association at the cheerleading camp they attended at the University of Montevallo.

Cool Couples

High school wouldn't be the same without dating. Even though relationships usually don't last long in high school, they still played a major role in students' lives. Some couples started the school day off with each other by riding to school together. As the day proceeded the couples continued to show their affection for one another. You could always catch them holding hands as they strolled down the halls, hovered around a locker they shared, or exchanging loving glances as they rushed off to their next class. Dating did bring some excitement to the school year but it also brought heartache and hurt feelings. This is why many students chose to stay single through the school year. Whether students were in a steady relationship or just dated around they still devoted lots of time to their social lives; especially the dating aspect.

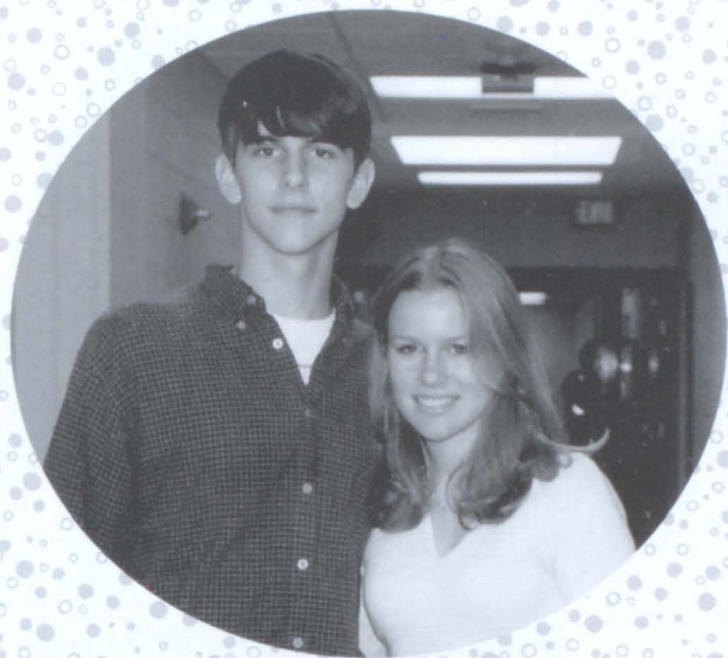

Regina Bright and Joey Hensley have a great time at their last homecoming dance. Students found the dances a great way to spend time with their special someone.

Breanna Latham and Chris Martin spend time together on the weekend. Couples enjoyed doing various activities together on the weekends.

Justin Woodruff and Jessica Honeycutt get close for a picture. Couples spent the majority of their time away from school together.

Brandon Foster and Krissy Hockaday stop for a picture on their way to class. Many couples walked each other to class so they could spend a little more time together.

Springin' With Spirit

*A*s school spirit filled the air, students prepared for the exciting events MHS had to offer. At pep-rallies, football games, and other athletic events, students showed their support by wearing orange and blue, and screaming "Go Bulldogs". Homecoming events were also filled with lots of spirit. The Seniors showed their school spirit the most and came in first place.

Senior Chris Garza shows lots of school spirit during homecoming week. He helped the seniors gain last years victory.

Fall Fever

Seniors Josh Tucker, Deshane Davis, and Josh Hardin carry the blue devil on theme day. The Seniors worked hard to create their coffin and the blue devil.

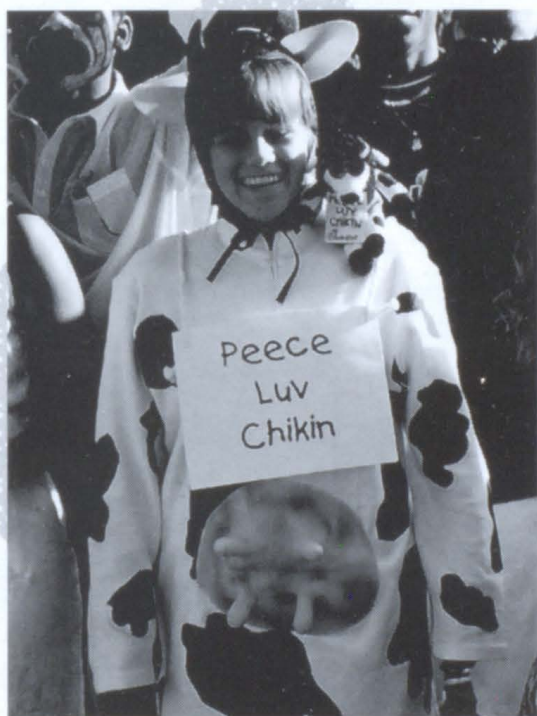

Everyone had Fall Fever as Homecoming Week approached this year. The students at MHS got the Homecoming fever at the first pep rally of the season. When the week finally arrived every class was prepared for victory. From construction, to Mardi Gras, each class had clever themes. Freshman discovered the difficulty to determine a theme, finally deciding on "Flush the Blue Devils", while the Sophomores got creative with "Devour the Blue Devils". The Juniors decided to use a construction theme this year with "Bulldoze the Blue Devils", and the Seniors went with a Mardi Gras theme their last year here at MHS with "Dance on the Devils".

Freshmen, Jimmy Anderson and Jeremy Payne pose with their plummets on Theme Day. The Freshmen had a creative theme this year, "Flush the Blue Devils".

Sophomore Jessica Queen smiles for the camera in her Chik-fil-A cow suit on Halloween Day. Many people were impressed by her creative idea to be the cow.

Brooke McGibbony is looking stylish for Future Day. She also went so far as to paint a bar code on the back of her neck.

Burning Rubber Throughout the Seasons

There are few joys when it comes to going to high school, but being able to drive to school had to be at the top of many Upperclassmen's lists. The journey through high school included getting your driver's license somewhere along the way. The thought of being able to drive yourself to and from school instead of riding the "cheese wagon" brought much joy to the lives of some students. While some still had to ride the bus or have their parents drop them off, they could only wait to be able to have this great opportunity to DRIVE.

What's it going to be: Alabama or Auburn? Either way, students and teachers supported their respective schools by adding on these car tags.

"I love to be able to drive because it gives me much more freedom." —Junior Kendall Ingram

"I'm glad to be driving to school this year. The days of the yellow cheese are over!" —Senior Jennifer Broadnax

"I'm glad to be driving the car that I have now because my old car was a piece of junk!" —Junior Brook McGibboney

Senior Tim Graham stands next to a replica of Jeff Gordon's #24 Chevy Monte Carlo. Tim wished that he could trade in his truck for this very fast ride.

Students such as Senior Jonathan Rutledge park their cars on Oak Street. This made for a quick get away after the school day.

Who ever said that girls don't like big trucks? Senior Emily Haslett sits in her dream automobile, a 2001 Chevy Silverado Z71.

What's HOT Now

This Freshman boy shows off his Abercrombie and Fitch shirt. Many girls and boys were found decked out in Abercrombie last year.

These two girls pose for a quick picture in their animal print shirts. Many girls were found with cheetah, zebra, snake, and even cow print clothes and accessories.

Boston's Birkenstocks were still popular this year among all students. These shoes will never go out of style.

D.J. Morris is wearing cargo pants that zip off into shorts. These pants were popular among males last year.

Junior Sarah McMinn wears black capri pants from the Gap. These pants were found in all colors and styles on girls at Monteville High School last year.

Students Carl McGuire, Nik Layman, Jakob Layman, Geof Moek, and Andrew Dewesse strike a pose in their "work shirts". These shirts were found at the thrift store and other second hand stores.

What Will Be COOL Later

When you walk through the halls of Montevallo High School you notice a wide variety of styles of clothing. Everyone wants to stand out in what they choose to wear. Students picked outfits that represented their personalities. Things go in and out of style each year, some repeat themselves and some do not. The truth of the matter is, that a student at Montevallo High School will wear what is cool, comfortable, and stylish for their personality. Junior Tione Ray said, "I like to dress different than everyone one else and set my own trends."

Caleb Matherson shows his school spirit by wrapping his body with aluminum foil. He said he was a future Alabama fan.

Juniors Kendall Ingram, Lindsey Barnes, and Kristin Simcik are showing off their futuristic hair styles. Their class received second on future day.

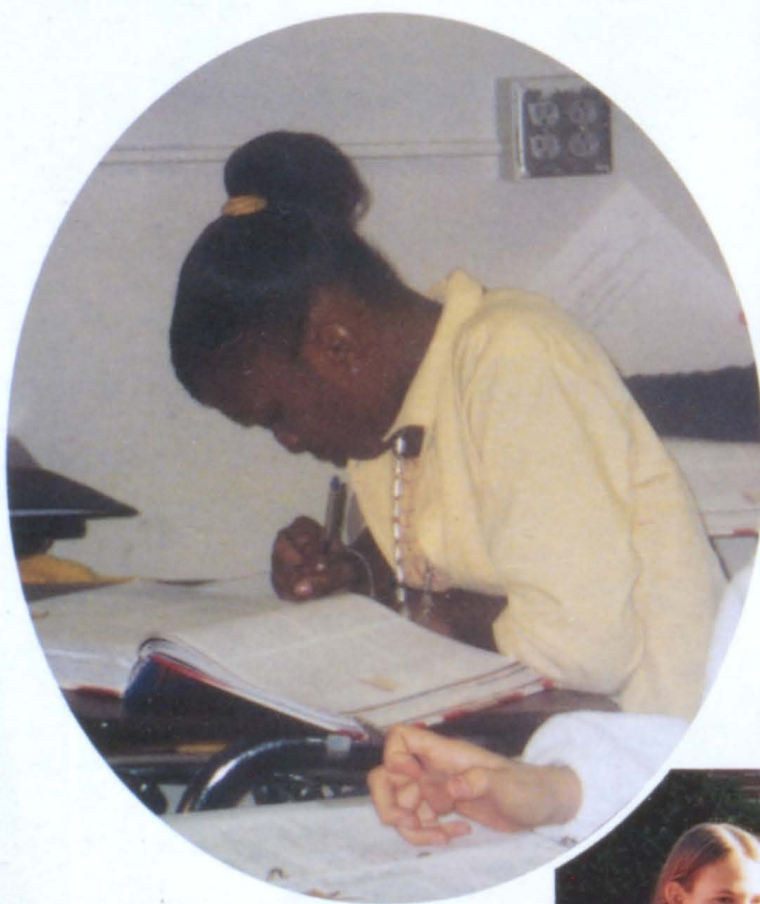

Molly Walker and Sarah McMinn are getting ready to take over the world in the future. They made their outfits themselves.

Through The Seasons

Monterey High School has a variety of students. The students had their own personalities, styles, activities, and choice of friends. Some were cheerleaders, football players, scholars, band members, or band members. Whatever they chose to be, they were different in their own kind of way. Even the faculty had activities and personalities that made them stand out. Through the seasons, students and teachers found a way to work together to accomplish all sorts of goals.

Alicia Brown works hard to finish her history homework. Students found they had more free time in the afternoons if they finished their work at school.

Jamie Hoots, Mandi Huggins, and Britney Young dressed as clones for future day. These girls almost could have passed as triplets.

Sizzlin' Seniors

The final year at MHS has slipped away for many Seniors. As they walked the stage on that special night, all the memories of their high school days came back to mind. The first year of homecoming activities, learning how to drive, ordering a class ring, and sending out graduation invitations.

College awaits many graduating Seniors, while others will start a new life in the career field. Whatever each Senior decided to do, they were supported by family and staff members. Looking forward to what is in store for them, the Sizzlin' Seniors are glad, yet sad to be leaving.

Jittery Juniors

The Jittery Juniors had an exciting year this year. From preparing for the Exit Exam, to taking the ACT they were anxious. They met most of their goals and then some. Everyone was well excited about their upcoming year as a Senior, they could hardly wait. They had fundraisers to help for the prom that they could finally attend. They bought class rings to show how ready they were for their upcoming year. During homecoming week they had fun from Future Day, to Spirit Day, to the actual night of the Homecoming Dance. The year 2000-2001 was a great year for the students of the class of 2002.

Springin' Sophomores

The Sophomores sprung into their second year here at MHS. No more intimidation of being the youngest in the school.

They moved up the ladder of rank, but haven't quite made it to the top. Also, not halted at the bottom of the ladder, they are floating somewhere in the middle. Sophomores were relaxed and laid back with no worries or complaints. With no huge, important test or the task of choosing colleges why would they be worried? Jessica Burkett said her Sophomore year was "much better than my Freshman year because there was a lot less pressure and I knew what to expect." Springing into this year with expectations and experience of high school helped the Sophomores take this year in a laid back fashion.

SOPHOMORES

Fall In Freshman

Freshman fell into Montevallo High School with no idea what to do. Well, welcome to the real world. They gathered with Seniors at the Big Brother/Big Sister assembly, began homecoming activities, and struggled with many six weeks and semester exams, throughout their first year. The Big Brother/Big Sister assembly was a time to let the Freshman get to know the Seniors and learn more about what to expect from Montevallo High School.

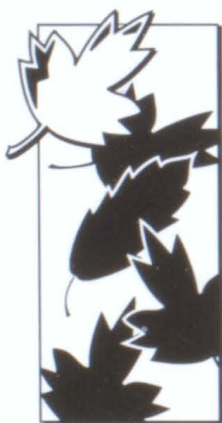

Homecoming activities were exciting for Freshman as they finally got to be a part of the big show. Six weeks and semester exams, what a boring time, was very frantic because Freshman were not accustomed to having to remember all the things teachers taught throughout the six weeks and the semester.

Freshman are looking forward to another wonderful year again next year.

Fabulous Faculty

This past year was an exciting year for the teachers at Montevallo. They might have had some troublesome times with a few of the students but they hung in there. With four new teachers, Jennifer Westall, La-Toya Hall, Erma Hinton, and Daniel Davis, the teachers at MHS were ready this past year. With the help of these teachers the staff proved that they were ready. Faculty member Nancy Werbach was awarded teacher of the year for Montevallo High School. The teachers of last year weren't only extraordinary, but they were FABULOUS!

Sportin' The Season

Montevallo High School has a wide variety of sports. Many students played and worked hard at their sport or sports they choose. Playing a sport was a lot of hard work. Between practices and games students had to work hard to try to fit school work and other activities in their schedule. Not only did the students work hard to be their best so did the coaches. Coaches spent a lot of time teaching and working with their teams, so that they would be the best they could be.

JV Cheerleaders Abbi Maddox, Amber Clecker, Desilyn Chappell, and Katie McWilliams show their spirit while cheer at a pep rally. They always performed well at pep rallies, as well as games.

Shanteeka Reed passes the ball back to a team member at volleyball practice. The team practiced five days a week to make sure they looked good at their games.

Falling Into The Game

Yet another year of football has come and gone for the Mighty Bulldogs. Going through a "rebuilding" year, the Dawgs struggled during the middle of the season before having a late season surge by winning their last two games. With the loss of Senior Defensive Lineman Josh Hardin at the beginning of the season and Junior Wide Receiver Ronnie Gilbert during midseason, Coach Charles Boren had to look elsewhere for help on the field. Sophomore DJ Barnes was Coach Boren's best answer. DJ had a stellar season gaining many points for the Dawgs in the running game. Although having a 3-6 record this past year, there is plenty of talent on the uprise for the future.

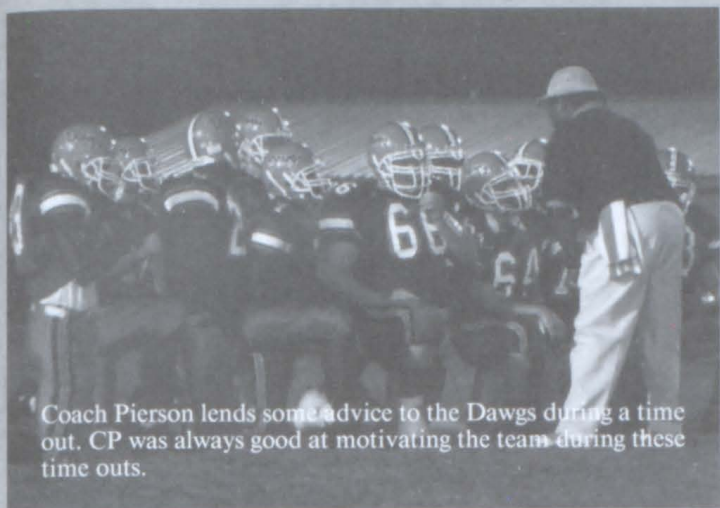

The Dawg's offense gets into formation to start the next play. The offense heavily relied on the defense for good field position to drive the ball into the endzone.

Storming Down the Court

The Varsity Girls basketball team had a sensational season this past year. They stormed down the court to many great, exciting victories. Along with Coach Johnye Horton's help they competed in several tournaments also. Last year, Alicia Brown and Santana Smith, Sophomores, were pulled up to varsity because of their playing ability, while the rest of the team was made up of Juniors and Seniors. These girls did a great job of storming their way down the court to score many points on the board and with the fans.

Warming Up

This past year's Varsity Cheerleaders could definitely be considered the best in MHS history. Under the excellent coaching skills and support of Mrs. Raynette Ellison, this team sparkled. "I've really enjoyed cheering this year. It has given me the opportunity to get to know people that I wouldn't normally be around," said Junior Christin Buttel. Over the summer they attended a camp at the University of Montevallo, where they were taught by the awesome instructors from the Universal Cheerleaders Association (UCA). While there, the girls worked on new cheers, dances, and stunts. They won all superior ribbons and Erica Cain made the all-star squad. Everyone worked extremely hard and greatly improved. These girls just might have been the best squad in MHS history.

"Beware of the Big Dawgs" everyone yells as MHS prepares to play at the home of Dora's bulldogs. The "big dawgs" proved themselves as they made this game their first win of the season.

This stunt is nothing compared to the many others that the girls can do. At the homecoming pep rally, both the JV and Varsity cheerleaders combined for an outstanding performance.

Julynn Bradshaw smiles as she listens to the crowd cheering along with her. Everyone in the audience knew the cheers as well.

Tee for Tuwa

Golf, a sport not only played by professionals such as Tiger Woods, but played by high schoolers as well. This past year's golf team spent many afternoons putting away at Montevallo's golf course. They had to practice to prepare to go up against teams such as Shelby County, West Blocton, and Thompson. With a brand new team, the golf team members had a lot of work ahead of them. Under new head coach, Tony Berry, the players prepared for a long journey ahead of them. Returning senior, Geoff Maeck served as an example for all new members.

Junior, Sean Hoots practices at the University of Montevallo's golf course. He was very anxious to get started as this was his first year playing on the team.

Preparing to move on to the next hole, Junior Aaron Staab reaches for his bag. Being his third year playing, Aaron was very excited to start the season.

Making the PUTT

Sophomore Carl McGuire gets ready to take a swing to kick off the season practices. McGuire spent a lot of time at the golf course getting ready for the upcoming matches.

Andrew Devees looks out to the driving range for the clear shot. The driving range was where the team members spent most of their time to let out all their energy and swing their hardest.

Senior Geoff Moeck follows through with his shot. Three previous years on the golf team gave Geoff a lot of experience to help the others.

Aaron Staab comes back to take the full swing at tryouts. Aaron spent a lot of time practicing and luckily made the team. His contribution to the team was greatly needed.

Hot Hits...

The baseball team had an awesome season this past year. They worked really hard at practices and games. The team started practicing late in January everyday after school with the occasional Saturday practices. The team was coached by Kevin Raybon and Robert Rollan. The team and coaches worked hard almost everyday and that's why they had Hot Hits and Throws

Mark Czeskleba goes down low to catch a ball. Mark worked hard everyday to perfect his game and to have a great season.

Chris Register hits the ball as hard as he can at practice. Chris had an excellent Senior year.

The baseball team's infield works on catching the ball and throwing it to bases. This helped the infielders throw more people out at their games.

And Throws

The baseball team gets ready to work on drills. Drills really helped the team get ready for their games.

Coach Rollan and Junior Rhea Broadhead, warm up the baseball team at practice. Coach Rollan made sure the team worked hard, gave their best, and had fun.

Bruce Hyer hits balls to teammates to prepare them for tough games. Bruce had a great season pitching and hitting.

Fallin' and Ballin'

The girls softball team played many great games this season. Not only did the team face many changes but they also gained a new coach, Daniel Davis. The team had another new change in location. Now practicing at Stephens Park, which is a new facility, has more room, and gives the girls a larger place to practice. Every afternoon the girls practiced until dark. They worked on various things such as outfielding, batting, and pitching. By the end of the season you could really tell that their hard work and effort had finally paid off. The girls left the season with great abilities and a lot of memories.

Kristen Simcik slips another player her secret curveball during practice. Some of the players secrets helped win games.

Sophomore Mary Stano bends over to catch the ball. Being ready for everything was a big challenge.

Freshman Daphne Williams, gives it her all as she attempts to throw the ball to another player. Practicing everyday made it perfect.

Springin' Spikers

The varsity volleyball team played their hearts out last year playing 18 games, winning 7 and losing 11. Junior Milli Huff and Senior Shaye McNeal were just two of the best players on the team. Both advanced later to the All-State team. Senior Shaye McNeal said, "Well, we got off to a slow start, but as the season went on we improved a lot."

Coach Emmalee Palla coached the Junior Varsity team on to victory this past year. With a record of 2- 2 the girls still played their best. Both teams played practice games against each other to help with their improvements.

Both teams played well and had fun doing so.

BoUnCiNg Through the Season

The Junior Varsity Boys Basketball team bounced their way through the basketball season very well with a 16-5 win/loss record. The team was very small consisting only of seven young men, five of them being Freshmen and two Sophomores. "I feel if they stay together they have the ability to be one of the best basketball teams ever assembled at Montevallo," stated head coach Kenny Dukes. These boys went the extra mile and did what ever it took to win their games.

Only Seconds Remaining...

During last year's JV Girls Basketball season the players had great defensive and offensive skills that lasted until the last seconds of the game. The girls worked hard with Coach Latoya Hall to perfect their playing ability. With great points, guards, and post players the team turned out to have a successful season. Practicing with the Varsity Girls Team helped them and gave them a tough challenge but made them turn out better in the long run. The girls on this team are really looking forward to playing on varsity for years to come.

Seasonal Marchers

Another awesome season has come and gone for these Seasonal Marchers and has left many great memories in its path. Not only did the Troubadours have a blast playing their new music this season, but they also blew away their opponents in the many competitions that they attended. It would have been an easy guess to say that the Troubadours were going to have a great season with leaders such as Drum Major Katie White and Band Director Craig Bates. Although this was the last season for all of the Seniors, underclassmen will have the opportunity to march into many more seasons to come.

Field the Heat

This last year's color guard was the best in MHS history. The dance team did excellent with their very first year, also. Their sponsors, Joanne Butcke, Reba Metclaf, and Vicki Webb, pushed them to go on as they practiced long hours over the summer and after school. With eight young ladies on color guard and sixteen on dance team, they both combined with the band and each other to produce an outrageous half time show. They took their show to many competitions and received numerous superior ratings. "The competitions were a lot of fun. It was a great experience for everyone on the team," said Valerie Metclaf. After all of their hard work, it paid off as everyone in the crowd could "field" the heat as they performed.

Being a majorette may have looked like an easy job, but it was not as easy as people would have thought. Last years majorettes consisted of two old members, Seniors Angela Lefurgey and Bethany Harrell and three new members, Sophomore Leigh Lyle and Juniors Anna Godwin and Jessica Honeycutt. These girls worked very hard by going to camp and practicing everyday. Their goal of being the best was accomplished, when at marching competitions they received all superior ratings. They worked hard to look good at half-time shows, parades, pep-rallies, and competitions. "It was really tough at first since I was new at being a majorette, but all of the hard work paid off and helped me adjust. I had a lot of fun and can not wait until next year!" said Anna Godwin.

The Seasons

Student Council and Peer Helpers this past year set the example for many students at MHS. Student Council leads the way with Big Brother/ Big Sister, and organizing the Homecoming events. Christmas was a big time for both groups. Peer helpers raised money to make Christmas joyful for all, while Student Council prepared Christmas dinners in a basket for needy families. The Peer Helpers attended camp during the Spring bring out there qualifications and abilities to help others. Students were encouraged throughout the year to help participate with projects, even if you weren't a peer helper or in the student council.

Junior, Chris Stano, volunteers at the Humane Society. The Peer Helpers went several times to the Humane Society to walk the dogs. This is one of the many helpful deeds that the Peer helpers did over the year.

Scholars of Today...

We had many scholars here at MHS, although one group stuck out in particular. The Scholars Bowl team was filled with future leaders last year. The MHS Scholars Bowl team had a great year due to the many competitions they participated in last year. Scholars Bowl team members were often found goofing around after school at their practices. Practice was held every Tuesday and Wednesday from 3:15 until 4:15 to better prepare the team members for difficult competitions.

Cream of

The Key Club was a group of students who were very involved in the community. This club consisted of students from the Junior and Senior classes. They went to the elementary school once a month to read to the kids. The National Honor Society included an elite group of students. These Seniors had to maintain a 3.5GPA throughout their high school years and continue this average during their senior year. The members were inducted at the end of their Junior year. One of the many activities the NHS participated in was the Festival of Trees. The students involved in these two groups truly were "the Cream of the Crop".

What's Your First Priority?

First Priority was a place where students could come and have fellowship with their peers on campus. It was held every Tuesday at 7:15 a.m., and was a good way to start out the day. This student group of fellow Christians also sponsored events such as "See You At the Pole." "See You At the Pole" was a nation wide attempt to bring students and teachers across the nation together in prayer. First Priority helped people express their beliefs freely to their fellow class mates, and they were not afraid to show What their First Priority was.

Juniors Lindsey Barnes and Molly Walker enjoy sharing weekly testimonies with each other. First Priority always let out welcome hands inviting anyone and every one to their meetings.

FCA, Fellowship of Christian Athletes, was an organization where people with two common characteristics, their love for sports and their devotion to God, could come together and spend time with each other. This group of Montevallo High School students met about three times a month at the Montevallo First Baptist Church. These meetings were a good way to give busy athletes a time to come together and fellowship with their peers, who were also, in most cases, their teammates. FCA did this by working around the players schedules to provide a time where they could meet. In their meetings they discussed how Bible topics affect their decisions, actions, and the way they come off to others. "FCA was an enjoyable way for me to worship God with people just like me," said Sophomore Joseph Hope, "they would also work around my sports schedule so I would have time to come."

FCA members Drew Pickett and Mathew Hope listen and consider the importance of the message that is being given. FCA met three times a month to spend time together and encourage one another with their faith in God.

Senior Josh Hardin, President of FCA, leads the group in their fellowship. Their almost weekly meetings took place at the Montevallo First Baptist Church.

Future Leaders

Being part of an organization makes the school year seem to fly by as a high school student. There were many opportunities for all students to be a part of something. There was the FFA which allowed students to learn about agriculture and gave them the chance to try out their wood-working skills. There was the FBLA which prepared students for the real world by teaching them job seeking abilities. There was also the FTA which allowed students who would like to become teachers the opportunity to learn what their career field would be like. Whatever your choice might have been, it was always an exciting time doing something that you enjoyed!

Blowing Us Away

The MHS Moonlight Players completely lit up the stage during the 2000/2001 school year. Everyone in Theatre Arts practiced very hard during and after school to produce their shows. Their winter production was called "Plots and Plays In Ten." The price of a ticket seemed merely a small thing when the play was over. This team of well-trained actors and actresses was led by English teacher, Mrs. Jane Clayton. This was her third year as director of the Moonlight Players. Props and furniture were well used and the whole play had the audience on the edge of their seats. If an awesome play was what these students were going for, they got their way.

Juniors Lindsey Barnes and Christin Buttel act as quite friendly ghosts. Every part of the play was very intriguing.

Senior Regina Bright is truly stubborn with her mother and sister, but it is all an act. Many people waited for her attitude to change, but sadly it didn't.

Benita Young scares Jada Jeffrey terribly as she threatens to kill her. The entire audience was quietly in suspense.

Hunter Freeman poses as a very well-trained, impatient vampire. In the play he gave lessons to A.J. Leggett on how to scare children.

Ken Molay pleads with Krissy Hockaday about her sanity. This went on for a long time as she insisted that he build her coffin right then.

This sad mother has an upsetting discussion with her daughters. Times were seriously tough in this part of the play.

Sparkling in the Spotlight

In its 53rd year of reporting the news at Montevallo High, Spotlight continued its tradition of excellence as one of the nation's top high school newspapers. Led by Tri-Editors Nik Layman, Andria Piper, and John Paul Foster, Spotlight earned the All Alabama Honor Rating from Alabama Scholastic Press Association. The newspaper was also awarded the All American Honor Rating from National Scholastic Press Association and the Gold Medalist Honor rating from Columbia Scholastic Press Association. In March, Journalism students attended the NSPJA convention in New York City, went on tours in the Big Apple and saw two Broadway productions. Jimmy Cook and Carl Maguire served as sports editors during the year. The staff was sponsored by Journalism teacher Larry Haynes and technical advisor Susie DeMent who co-founded the newspaper in 1948.

Top: John Paul Foster and Jimmy Cook find that a computer is essential to complete an issue of the Spotlight. They both enjoyed writing articles for the newspaper.

Andria Piper is staying after school to finish up one of her articles. There were many days students had to stay late to get the newspaper to perfection.

Lights, Camera, Action!!

Mass Communications was a very popular class in which a handful of students participated in. The classes ranged from Mass Comm I to Mass Comm IV. They held weekly broadcasts that informed students on what was going on in school as well as outside of school. The Mass Communications class also traveled to The University of Alabama and The Columbia Scholastic Press Association in New York where they were judged on their work.

The second and third year Mass Comm students stop and pose for the camera. These students worked hard at preparing broadcasts for the school.

Terrion Talley, Tonya Thompson, Cambria Smith, Molly Walker, and Adrian Jones stop during a broadcast and laugh at their mistakes. This was a frequent task they made to perfect the broadcast.

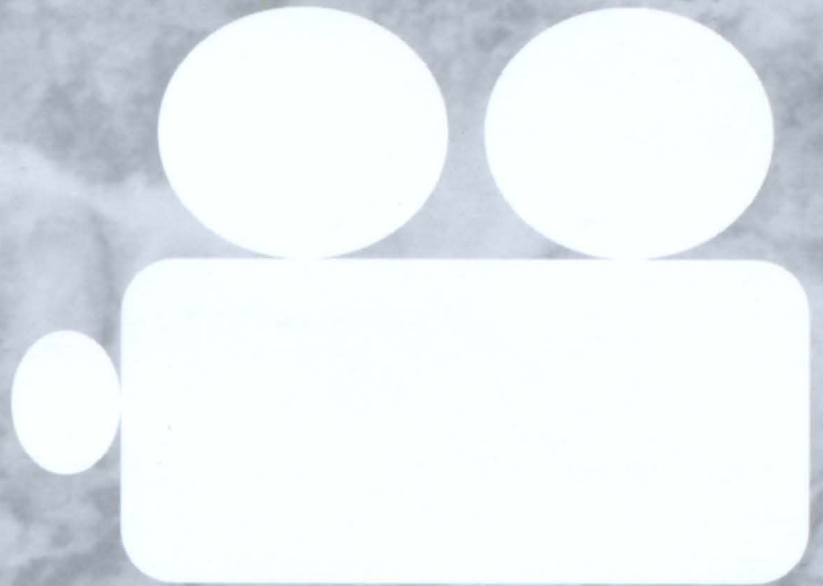

"Mass Communications was my favorite class and the one I did the best in."
— Senior Chansler DuBose

"I really enjoyed Mass Comm and I think that it will help me if I decide to pursue a career in Mass Communications." — Junior Molly Walker

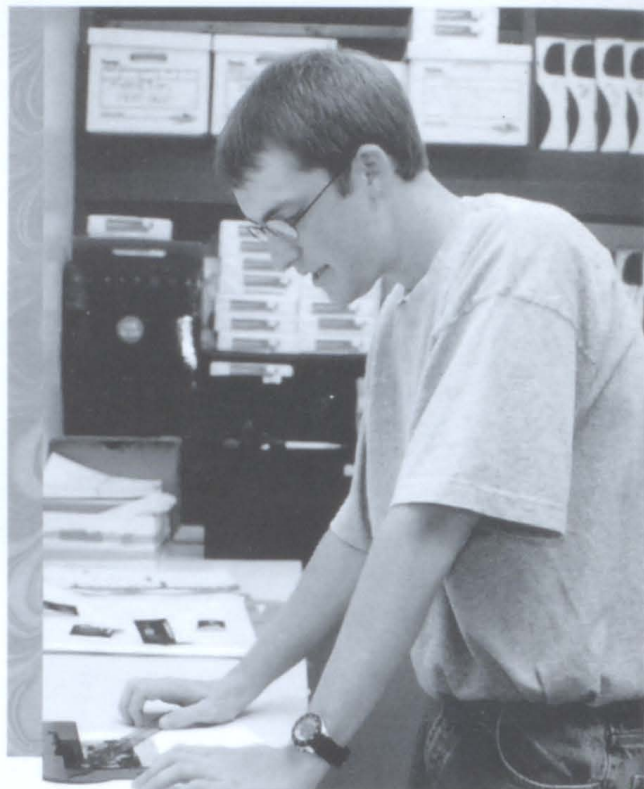

"I really enjoyed Mass Communications because it was a nice break from the regular classes."

Capturing the Seasons

The Montala staff this past year knew about working hard and rushing to make the best spreads possible. The staff consisted of all new members, but four. This made the year even tougher for the staff. Old members had to teach the new members how the yearbook worked and give them extra help along the way. Many Montala members were responsible for different things. Tim Graham, senior editor; Rene Morris, Junior editor; and Kendall Ingram, copy editor all had the job of grading and proofing all the spreads before sending them off. Business Managers Kira Minnick and Nicki Huggins had the responsibility of keeping up with ads and all the money. Sponsor Angela Triplett had the job of keeping everyone in line and on time. Despite of all the rush, deadlines, and hard work Montala managed to put together an excellent job.

Editor Tim Graham sneaks off to crop some pictures for his spread. Tim had a big year because he was an editor. You could always find him helping the staff.

Jessica Burkett calls businesses trying to sell ads during seventh period. Selling ads were a big part of being on the Montala staff.

Staff members are taking a break at Outback for Christmas. The staff exchanged gifts and then went to the movies.

A Helping Hand Through the Seasons

We would like to thank everyone who purchased an ad in the 2000-2001 Montevallo yearbook. Your generosity and support was greatly appreciated, because without you this yearbook would not have been possible. Ads were a great way for local businesses to support their high school and gain publicity. Ads were priced as following: Full page $300, Half page $150, Fourth page $75, Eighth page $40 and Sixteenth page $20.

We would like to give a special thanks to Senior Nik Layman for his donation of pictures to the Montala Yearbook Staff. Yearbook tried to cover every event, organization, and person in the yearbook.

Around 26 students at MHS have after school jobs at Lucky's, the local grocery store. Lucky's provided many students with a job.

Students Drew Heath and Joey Hensley converse at the snack machine. Students had 4 minutes in between bells to refresh themselves.

Junior Kendall Ingram is proud to own her Leach Pontiac. Leach Pontiac was one of the many contributors who placed an ad in the Montevallo Yearbook.

 Dear Angel ever at my side, how lovely you must be—
 To leave your home in heaven, to gaurd a child like the way. Your beautiful and shining face, I see not, praying too. Your prayer is just for me. But, when I

Senior Benita Young concentrates hard on her studies. Students did their very best whenever they were in class.

The Juniors wanted the football team to "Bulldoze the Blue Devils" of Moody. Everyone showed their wonderful school spirit during homecoming week, at other pep rallies, and at games.

Emily Brown shows off her costume on class theme day. The seniors partied down during homecoming week for their last time at MHS.

The varsity cheerleaders show off one of their awesome stunts at a football pep rally. These girls practiced hard for their many performances and competitions.

Juniors Rene Morris and Nicki Huggins flaunt their "Future Day" outfits. Students looked very out of this world throughout the week.

The Days of a Bulldog

The year has come and gone quickly. The faculty, different classes, sports, activities, and many friends made the 2000-2001 school year a very special one. There were lots of things to do throughout the year. Students went to volleyball, football, basketball, baseball, and softball games to support their bulldogs.

Members of the band practiced long hours for their many performances. The cheerleaders worked hard perfecting their basket-tosses and other amazing stunts to entertain the crowds. Teachers spent nights coming up with wonderful lesson plans and days making sure that their students understood. Everyone worked together day by day to make this past year the best ever days of a bulldog.

Freshman homecoming attendants Brittany Young and Rachel Harper ride through Montevallo in the parade. The girls were happy to be chosen.
